NCSC Security Advisory – NCSC-ADV-201210-001

Revocation of Adobe Code Signing Certificate

This advisory is to report that Adobe has released a security bulletin to address an issue with a current Adobe code signing certificate. The certificate to be revoked has been used to sign malicious code.

Adobe plans to revoke the certificate on October 4 for all software code signed after July 10, 2012. Adobe is issuing a new digital certificate for all affected products which may require administrative intervention.

For further details about this revocation, see:
